“THE ASTROLOGER’S ‘WHO’S WHO’”

FOURTH EDITION, WITH CORRECTIONS, ETC.

INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHING CO.,
11 EAST CLAREMONT STREET, EDINBURGH.

INSTRUCTIONS.

AGAINST each entry will be found a NUMBER, and on turning up this number in the later portion of the book, the House-cusps and Planets' places of the horoscope will be found.

Most of the horoscopes in this book are indexed under the native's surname, and only exceptionally under title or rank, but this rule has not been followed universally. Therefore, it is advisable to look for Cardinals, Popes, Princes, etc., under C, P, etc., as well as under christian or surname. Where the native is a Duke, or of Royal blood, look also under dukedom or country. Thus, Nicholas II., Czar of Russia, is indexed under R, the Prince Imperial under P, Rudolf of Austria under A, the Duke of Sforzia under S.

Foreign and Indian names should be looked for under both christian and surname. Possible variations of names should also be borne in mind, e.g., Giulio for Julius, Hieronymus for Jerome, etc., etc. Sometimes a map which cannot be found under one name or title may be indexed under another. For example, the Princess Stephanie of Belgium became the Crown Princess of Austria by marrying the Archduke Rudolf.

For further particulars see some Explanatory Notes on p. 100.

Long. 76 W.)—MA v 89; VIII 400. A very remarkable nativity; owing to the birth-place being within the Arctic Circle the Twelfth House cuts a point of the Zodiac posterior and not anterior to that on the Ascendant, and similarly with the other houses, so that the Zodiac appears to pass over the houses the reverse way. This figure is calculated according to the method of Regiomontanus described in Astrology for All Part II p. 278. The cusps according to the method of Campanus are $\omega 3\frac{1}{2}$, $\pi 26\frac{1}{2}$, $\pi 14$, $\kappa 26\frac{1}{2}$, $\nu 21$, $\nu 9\frac{1}{2}$. These are the cusps, assuming that the cusps of χ ii x ix viii must be above horizon. Mr. H. S. Green and some other astrologers consider $\omega 3\frac{1}{2}$ the cusp not of the tenth house but of the fourth and would call the cusps as given those of iv iii ii x xii xi instead of x xi xii i ii iii as given by the calculator. A symposium of astrologers has been invited, see MA VIII 400, but the results are not to hand at the time of going to press.

* NOTE.—Cardan has $\gamma = 10^\circ$, which is probably correct. † Cardan gives M.C. γ 14, with Asc. $\approx 28^\circ$.
 ‡ Cardan has γ 17, & Π 20: \odot Π 19 in Gauricus is clearly a mistake and has been corrected.

SOME EXPLANATORY NOTES.

ARRANGEMENT OF THE BOOK.

THE method of arranging this book will, it is hoped, be comprehensible at a glance. Arranged alphabetically are the names or other headings of the 1001 horoscopes, each preceded by a number. Elsewhere, arranged so as to face each other are the House and Planetary Positions, each preceded by the corresponding number.

In the alphabetical list of names, the corresponding number precedes the name, in the margin, thus enabling the reader to find the name belonging to any number almost as readily as the number belonging to any name, should he wish to do so. It may easily happen that a certain horoscope strikes the attention, and excites curiosity as to whose it may be; by way of example, No. 909 may be given, and the reader will be rewarded for his patience if he looks it up.

This method has been adopted, after much thought, as the most generally expedient and useful. It will be understood that to save space as far as possible is essential in a manual of this kind, and this plan besides possessing other conveniences, enables a number of data to be referred to briefly.

In order to avoid possible error through dropped type, numeration proceeds thus,

001, 002, 003, . . . 021, . . . 135, . . . 999, instead of

1, 2, 3, . . . 21, . . . 135, . . . 999.
Similarly 1/201, 1/205 for 1/21°, 1/25°.

THE PURPOSE OF THE BOOK.

This book has been advertised as "A Thousand and One Notable Nativities, compiled from authentic sources," and to the natural question whether the expression notable nativities is held to imply the nativities of noteworthy people, or merely nativities that are noteworthy in themselves the answer is, that both meanings have been held in view from the beginning. The chief aim of this compilation is to place before the average student a large number of horoscopes in a handy and portable form, so arranged as to enable ready reference to be made to any horoscope and—an equally important point—to facilitate comparison between one horoscope and another. The average student here mentioned is usually more or less of a beginner, and to the beginner that is most serviceable which is most 'interesting'; for interest fixes the attention and stimulates the mind. The horoscope of some famous person, say Lord Roberts or "B. P.," stirs the imagination of the beginner and piques his interest, and thus impels him to effort.

The utility of such a collection of nativities of Notable People, therefore, will not be disputed and the reader may wonder why these pages are not entirely taken up with such valuable incentives to study, and why the horoscope of his favourite hero in real life happens to be missing! Like the Compiler, he may have had occasion to consult that invaluable publication, Who's Who, and felt aggrieved at the absence of certain remarkable people from its pages.

Probably in both these cases the respective compilers are alike blameless. With regard to the present work at any rate, no pains have been spared to make it as complete as possible. There is however a great difficulty in obtaining authentic birth-data of notabilities, as all who have attempted it know. Of this more later.

In going through the pages of past issues of The Astrologer's Magazine, Modern Astrology, The Horoscope, Coming Events, and many other modern and some mediæval astrological publications, many interesting nativities were found, valuable to the student for one cause or another, and a considerable number of these have been included, under appropriate headings, e.g., "Birth in a Mourning Coach." But even in such a case the main object has been kept in view, and where an authentic horoscope of some famous person could be found to take its place, that has been done.

This brings us to a consideration of the word "authentic" and the sense in which it has been construed by the Compiler.

AUTHENTIC HOROSCOPES.

Perhaps a short explanation of the inception of the book may be useful. It arose out of a request made by a subscriber in 1904: "I wish," he wrote, "you could see your way to issue a cheap pamphlet or booklet, giving the planetary positions and cuspal degrees of eminent and well-known personages."

To this the reply was: "So do we!"—and the writer went on to say (MODERN ASTROLOGY, I. 314):

"The difficulty of obtaining reliable birth-data of distinguished and well-known people is surprising. . . . To give an instance of the difficulty alluded to: Some time ago there was published in MODERN ASTROLOGY (ix. 136) a horoscope of Mr. George R. Sims, based on a reputed time of 4 a.m., 2/9/47, which gave $\Omega 27$ on the ascendant. Shortly afterwards, in one of his breezy paragraphs in the Referee, the author in question airily remarked that as a matter of fact he was born at 6 p.m. The natural result of this was the immediate publication of a horoscope for that time, giving Aquarius on the ascendant. But can anyone familiar with the picture in the 'Tatcho' advertisement persuade himself that the author of the Memoirs of a Landlady was born under Aquarius!

"That is the difficulty. On the one hand (this is only a typical case, there are many more) we have a horoscope giving an ascendant quite in conformity with the appearance and character of the man; on the other, a 'fact,' from the fountain head—the native himself. It is considerations such as these that make the investigator very cautious in accepting reputed birth-times of celebrities."

This was probably intended rather as a counsel of prudence than as discouragement of the project suggested, yet the researches undertaken in preparing this book have more than once brought it to mind. In several cases it has proved necessary to include two horoscopes of the same person, for the following reason:—

Most mediæval writers, and some more modern ones, in publishing a horoscope merely state that the native was born at such a place and time, omitting all reference to the source of their information, and leaving it to the reader's inductive powers to discover that too often the horoscope is based upon some more or less trustworthy process of rectification! The case of Cromwell furnishes a striking instance of this; John Gadbury published a nativity showing $\Upsilon 20^\circ$ ascending, John Partridge published another, with a whole bookful of 'directions' calculated from it, having $\Upsilon 26^\circ$ on the ascendant. Yet neither says a word implying that the horoscope is what for want of a better word we must call 'speculative.'

While, therefore, it should be remembered that these and other astrologers of mediæval times were men of ability and experience, whose opinion is not to be dismissed as of no value: quite apart from the possibility of there being many facts before them, as contemporaries, of which we are deprived and which if known to us might cause us to endorse their judgment; yet on the other hand it should not be forgotten that these astrologers were for the most part extreme fatalists, and, in consequence, placed what was perhaps too great a reliance upon the 'primary directions' by which they determined an unknown birthtime, assuming it to be thereby proven beyond the possibility of doubt or error. So that comparatively few of these mediæval horoscopes can be regarded as entirely authentic in the sense we are now accustomed to employ the word.

These remarks will apply with rather less force where Royal nativities are in question, since the birth of a prince is usually proclaimed within a very short time of the actual event.

No pains have been spared, so far as the Compiler is concerned, in the attempt to resolve any doubtful cases, whether mediæval or modern, and to give the correct nativity; as instances may be mentioned Madame Blavatsky, Mr. Barney Barnato, Madame Adelina Patti. But in these and similar cases the Compiler has not thought it fitting to obtrude his own astrological opinion, and therefore where the discrepancies in published horoscopes are due to a difference in birth-time only, both ascendants are given, with the authorities for each.

The nativities of Nero, Alexander the Great, Cicero and others dating from times B.C., are given for what they are worth, as interesting subjects for study in the way of research. But the young student may perhaps need to be reminded that such horoscopes will almost certainly have been calculated in comparatively recent times and based on documentary evidence that is possibly of questionable value, and he should therefore regard them as not above suspicion.

THE PLAN ADOPTED.

In the face of the facts just cited, it seemed to the Compiler that the best plan was to give the horoscope, with a reference to the book from which it was taken, so that the student who wished to investigate further might do so. And this has been done throughout. The only exception to this rule is in the case of horoscopes received through private sources, indicated by the letters "p.s." and for these the Compiler accepts full responsibility.* The time, date and place of birth are not given as they can if necessary be ascertained from the sources given. Where in the course of investigations other references have been found to any horoscope, these are added, generally after the source of the horoscope itself. Where obvious errors have been detected they have been put right.

It will be observed that house-cusps and planets are given in degrees, the minutes being omitted. In all cases the nearest degree is given, or in a comparatively rare number, where for any reason it appeared desirable, the nearest half-degree.

This course was rendered necessary by purely economic considerations, which likewise precluded the insertion of latitudes and declinations. But experience in connection with MODERN ASTROLOGY "Prize Competitions" has shown that these omissions do not sensibly detract from the value of horoscopes for the purposes of study. Indeed, it is an open question whether the gain in simplicity and clearness does

* N.B.—The 'private sources' referred to, it should be explained, do not include the immense numbers of horoscopes filed at the office of MODERN ASTROLOGY, as the result of private consultative not more than compensate, in the case of the average student, for the loss in apparent accuracy. We say "apparent" advisedly, for no item in judgment depends upon minute but only upon degree positions. And this compilation is intended to aid the student in developing his ASTROLOGICAL JUDGMENT.

The following quaint remarks by John Gadbury in the preface to his ephemeris for the years 1709-1729, published in 1709, may be pondered with advantage. He says:—

"And, here I shall presume to tell you,—That in the Days of YORE, when Astrologers were less curious in the Mathematical part of a Geniture (which in truth is not directly their Province, allowing a Distinction of Astrologie from Astronomy). They were generally more veritable in their judgments. (Not that I think the exactness in numbers any Bar to Truth in Judicals: For, as it cannot much Help, so it cannot be any Impediment.) But in this Critical Age, our vain Minute-mongers pretending to Astrologie, when being at any time discovered to have committed any Gross Errors in their Guesses, they confidently hope to Commute for the Failure by Pleading Preciseness in their Calculations, Craftily laying the Fault upon the Stars, rather than taking it (as they ought) upon themselves. Than the which, can there be any thing more unequal and ridiculous? As if when an Artist hath been Guilty of unpardonable Errors in his Judgments . . . it were an Ample and Plenary Satisfaction to Affirm, by way of Defence,—That however the Event hath Prov'd, they were Numerically Exact in their Calculations. Whereas such an Apologie, instead of excusing our Man of Art, doth plainly Accuse him, and the Art also, of Errour and Incertainty."

THE NATIVITIES OF PROMINENT PEOPLE OF THE PRESENT DAY.

The reader may be interested to know that in addition to ransacking the files of MODERN ASTROLOGY and other publications, as well as his own collection of nativities, an energetic attempt was made by the Compiler to secure new material. Copies of the following letter were duplicated in typescript and sent to living celebrities—both men and women:

DEAR SIR OR MADAM,

The Editor of MODERN ASTROLOGY, in preparing for the press A Thousand and One Notable Nativities feels that he would like to ADD YOUR HOROSCOPE. I therefore venture to ask you to be so good as to fill in the form below. The filling in of this form will not be held to imply any opinion regarding Astrology. The horoscopes will be published without comment.

TIME OF BIRTH, if known (state clearly whether morning, noon or night) _____

DATE OF BIRTH (please make the figures very distinct) _____

BIRTHPLACE IN FULL _____

ADDRESS IN FULL _____

Your indulgence of this request will be highly esteemed and gratefully acknowledged by

Yours faithfully,

(Sub-Editor of "Modern Astrology").

P.S.—Should you for any reason be unable or unwilling to communicate the particulars asked for, I should esteem it a courtesy if you would initial this letter here _____ and return it. I may add that in this book the horoscopes only, and not the Date or Place of birth will be published, and that this information will be treated as confidential. The Time, Date and Place are, however, needed for calculating the Horoscope.

In response to this a number of replies were received and though not all gave birth-times we are indebted to this letter for (amongst others) the nativity of SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON, the great explorer.

It is some commentary upon prevailing standards of courtesy that quite a large number of these letters were not acknowledged in any way, in spite of the enclosed stamped envelope, but thanks are due to the following ladies and gentlemen for their courteous replies: Sir T. A WORD ON SPECULATIVE HOROSCOPES.

Notwithstanding what has been said regarding 'speculative' horoscopes, a few such—very few comparatively—have been included in this book. This for the reason that the authentic birthtimes were not available, and because a speculative horoscope affords as useful a method as any of indicating at least the planetary positions at birth.

But in all such cases the fact is plainly stated, which is the essential thing.

There can be no objection to a speculative horoscope so long as it is not put forward as any thing else, and the attempt to construct or criticise such, forms a useful exercise for the student's faculties. In Modern Astrology for February, 1904, p. 35, the Editor sums up the case thus: "Most students know how little value is generally placed upon the horoscopes published in Sibby's book, and I could mention a book recently published in America in which numerous horoscopes are given in which the birth time is assumed. In the course of time these horoscopes will be taken by young students as authentic and much harm will result in consequence. I cannot, of course disapprove of any bona-fide attempt to find a birth-time by calculation, but it would be wise if at the time of giving the horoscope the statement were openly made that the true time of birth was not known. If we are to be thorough in our search for truth concerning Astrology let us avoid being too impatient and work slowly but surely for those who are to follow in our footsteps in the future."

It will be understood, of course, that in all these maps the day and place of birth have been carefully ascertained through the ordinary channels. Unless otherwise stated the responsibility for their calculation rests with the Compiler.

It may not be out of place to remind the student that the position of the Sun in regard to the M.C. will indicate the approximate time of day for which the map is calculated; e.g., ☉ in xi. ✱ M.C. = 10 a.m., ☉ in viii. ✱ M.C. = 2 p.m., and so on. Hence the Moon's place at midnight can readily be estimated, since the Moon moves approximately 12° a day, or 1° in two hours.

HOROSCOPES COPIED FROM OLD BOOKS, ETC.

In the case of nativities taken from the older writers such as Gauricus, Cardan and Junctinus, as indeed also in more modern cases where necessary, the approximate positions of Uranus and Neptune have been inserted. For this purpose a condensed Ephemeris of ♃ and ♆ from 1000 A.D. to 1800 A.D. was prepared. The Compiler has not hesitated to adopt the positions given by this ephemeris, which was prepared with great care, in preference to those given elsewhere, so far as maps calculated for any date prior to 1800 A.D. are concerned; considering them likely to be more correct, all things considered, than the approximate positions—presumably calculated on the spur of the moment—to be found added to such maps when republished in modern times.

The insertion of Uranus and Neptune undoubtedly adds greatly to the interest of these old maps. It is quite remarkable, for instance, to notice how frequently strong aspects between ♂ and ♀ or ♂ and ♃ are to be found in the nativities of the mediæval Popes.

One or two students have urged that the position of the hypothetical planet "Isis" should be inserted in each map. This, however, was impracticable for want of space, apart from the question of the advisability of giving what may be termed official recognition to a planet not yet discovered by the astronomer, and the astrological influence of which (assuming it to exist) has been investigated by two or three students at most.

For the benefit of the curious it may be stated that the position of Isis at the beginning of 1800 A.D. is given as ♄ 13° and its annual movement as 1°0'. From these data its position can easily be calculated for any map given in this book, since although dates are not given for reasons already explained,* the positions of ♀ ♃ and ♄ suffice to locate the year of birth. Thus their positions on January 1st of each decade are as follows:

	♂	♃	♄		♂	♃	♄
1800	♏ 17	♏ 27	♏ 9 R	1860	♏ 25	♏ 11 4 R	♏ 26 R
1810	♏ 8	♏ 13	♏ 10	1870	♏ 17	♏ 20 R	♏ 22
1820	♏ 29	♏ 26	♏ 25	1880	♏ 9	♏ 9 R	♏ 9
1830	♏ 20	= 5	♏ 17 R	1890	♏ 2 R	♏ 26	♏ 4 R
1840	= 11	♏ 13	♏ 16	1900	♏ 25 R	♏ 10	♏ 28
1850	♏ 3	♏ 22	♏ 2	1910	♏ 18 R	♏ 21	♏ 17

* "Osiris," another hypothetical planet, whose position in 1800 is given as ♏ 23° and annual motion 21'49", may, if desired, be inserted in the same way.†

* In the case of years prior to 1800 the date is given.

† It should be remembered that the annual movements 1°0'0" and 0°21'49" just given are based upon the Sidereal Years of the planets. Hence in finding the positions in, say, 1600 A.D., one must remember to subtract from the positions found, one degree for each 72 years, this being due to Precession; so that instead of ♏ 23 we should need to write ♏ 22 as the position of Isis in 1600 A.D. Similarly in 1872 the position should be ♏ 26 not ♏ 25, 1° having to be added in this case. It will be found that Queen Elizabeth had Isis in ♏ 13 to square to Mars in ♏ 12; horoscopes 847 and 849 also show Mars square Isis, while 873 shows Mars conjunction Isis

In the case of maps from Cardan, who uses a peculiar system of houses, the house-cusps are given as now calculated for the latitudes in question. But in other cases the maps have been copied as given, and it will probably be found that most of the older writers, like Junctinus, used the "rational method" of Regiomontanus. This method is fully explained in Casting the Horoscope and does not call for further remark here than to say that the ascendant by this method is the same as by that in common use.

DISCREPANCIES IN DATES.

Some discrepancies in dates which may puzzle the reader, as they already have the writer, may perhaps be explained by the following considerations.

(1) The Gregorian Calendar introduced in 1582 by Pope Gregory XIII. altered the year (i) by omitting 10 days and (ii) by making the year commence in January whereas it had hitherto commenced on March 25th. Hence any date between January 1st and March 25th might be reckoned in either of two years, 1582 or 1583, according to the style of reckoning adopted, civil or ecclesiastical.

Careful people wrote such dates in this fashion, Feb. 17th, 1582^{1/2}, but it can easily be seen that there is much room for ambiguity and this no doubt explains why so many famous people born about this time of the year should be given different year-dates by different authorities. Thus Francis Bacon's birth-date is given by some authorities as January 22nd, 1560, and by others as January 22nd, 1561, the true date being 1560-61—1560 according to the popular or civil reckoning, 1561 according to the ecclesiastical or legal.

The Gregorian Calendar was not fully adopted in Great Britain until 1752, although it had been practically universal on the Continent for over a century. The discrepancy between the reformed and the old (Julian) Calendar had then grown to 11 days, and students of history remember how the ignorant classes considered they had been defrauded by the omission, crying: "Give us back our eleven days!"

This discrepancy of 10, 11, 12 or 13 days (according to the century) does not as a rule cause much confusion. It is mentioned here (a) to explain why, for instance, Bacon should have the Sun in $\approx 8^\circ$ though born on January 22nd; (b) because Russia still employs the Julian Calendar, known as the Old Style (O.S.), and in order to convert a Russian date to New Style (N.S.) for use in our own Ephemeris we need to add 13 days for the present century, or 12 days for the century just past; (c) because occasionally historians or others convert an Old Style date into the corresponding date of the present calendar, thus giving currency to what are apparently two dates. With careful writers the letters O.S. and N.S. are always used and prevent any possible ambiguity. They are not often used in the present work as the position of the Sun is sufficient to show which style is used.

This explanation, then, will account for two discrepancies, namely (i) where two dates of birth, exactly a year apart, are in circulation, and (ii) where the Sun's position appears at first sight to contradict the stated day of the month.

(2) There is however another discrepancy frequently met with, and that is the discrepancy of one day. This is sometimes due to the habit of the older astrologers of registering time according to astronomical instead of according to civil usage. Astronomical time counts from noon to noon, civil from midnight to midnight. Consequently 6 a.m. of January 1st according to ordinary or civil reckoning, would be 18 p.m. of December 31st according to astronomical reckoning. In this way some discrepancies can be accounted for.

(3) The one-day discrepancy is occasionally due to a birth taking place at or near midnight—as in the case of Tennyson, who is variously given the 5th and the 6th of August for his "birthday." The existence of such a discrepancy thus supplies a clue to the time of birth nowadays, but could hardly be relied on for this purpose in the instances just referred to, for the reason stated.

In some cases, e.g., Dumas père, we find two dates given, as July 24th, 1802, July 24th, 1803, and in this case explanation (1) given above does not apply. In such cases, as explained elsewhere, unless unimpeachable evidence can be found to settle the matter, both maps are given, the Compiler not feeling it within his province to give a "casting vote" based upon astrological inferences.

GENERAL ACCURACY OF BIRTH-TIMES, ETC.

Some readers may wish to feel assured of the reliability of the horoscopes given in this book. In so far as that depends upon accurate calculation, the responsibility must rest with the publications from which they are taken, or, in the case of those marked p s, with the Compiler himself.

But there is another factor, and that is the accuracy of the stated birth-time. General experience in connection with the varied work of "Modern Astrology" Office shows that the average recorded birth-time may be presumed correct within ten minutes or a quarter of an hour—i.e., within three or four degrees of the M.C.

The reader may therefore feel quite safe in allowing (but not exceeding) a similar margin in regard to most of the horoscopes in this book, remembering that time is likely to be more accurately known when birth takes place during the day than during the night. In certain horoscopes where for any special reason the time is known with especial accuracy, the words "time exact" are added; in certain others, the letters t a or t u indicate that the time is approximate or uncertain.

In the case of any Royal Personages, especially if a direct heir to the throne, the time is usually stated in an Official Bulletin, and can therefore be regarded as absolutely trustworthy. In the vast majority of published horoscopes, however, the time is usually given as "7 a.m.," "3 a.m.," "a quarter to eight in the evening," or what not, without any further particulars as to source, etc.; so that had this information been added in each case, it would only have increased the bulk of the book without in any way adding to its worth.

It is quite true that it is very difficult to obtain perfectly accurate birth-times, and that in consequence most published nativities must be regarded as more or less approximate. But it is very easy to err too far in this direction, and a student known to the writer has given it as his opinion, based on wide experience, that "as a rule, the more time and labour is given to a 'rectification,' the nearer is the resulting birth-time likely to approach the time originally recorded."

ABBREVIATIONS, REFERENCES, ETC.

A list of the chief abbreviations used in this work will be found on p. vi.

A little book that has been of great service to the Compiler, and has proved very accurate so far as he has had occasion to test it, is When and Where of Famous Men and Women, published by George Routledge & Sons, in which are given the dates and places of birth and death of some 6,000 celebrities of all ages and countries. It should be in the possession of every student of Astrology. The price is only a shilling.

A most useful work of reference is Hady's Universal Index of Biography, London, 1870, obtainable in most Public Libraries.

A SUGGESTION.

It is not intended to prescribe how this book shall be made most serviceable to the student; each will find out, and will naturally prefer, his own method of using it.

But a suggestion may be offered, and also one strong recommendation made. The suggestion is to use in connection with the book My Friends' Horoscopes,* and the recommendation, to resist with all the strength of one's mind the temptation which is sure to beset one of dipping about here and there, glancing first at this nativity and then at that, and making no settled study of any one. It is not merely advisable, but really necessary, in most cases, to copy out the data on a map form. Otherwise, many significant points in the map fail to strike one. An earnest and detailed study of one map will profit the student more than scampering over the planetary positions of a hundred, for this only tends to scatter the mind, and for the study of Astrology more than perhaps anything else, the mind needs to be concentrated.

* Uniform in size and price with this. Contains fifty blank maps, with blank page facing each for remarks, also index, etc.

AN APPEAL.

This book has been prepared with all possible care,—the amount of time and labour involved having unfortunately delayed publication very greatly beyond the appointed time,—but from the nature of the task the Compiler can scarcely dare to hope that it is entirely free from error.* In the interests of all students, therefore, he begs that the reader will acquaint the Publishers with any error or inaccuracy he may chance to discover; a post-card will serve.

Further, he would venture to appeal to all who may see this book, and who may have in their possession interesting horoscopes or natiivities of notable people not to be found herein, to forward the requisite data:

- (i) Time, Date, and Place of Birth.
- (ii) Source of Information.
- (iii) Name and Address of Sender.

For this also a post-card will usually suffice. In response to a similar appeal made through the pages of MODERN ASTROLOGY some time ago, through the kindness of certain readers the natiivities of Richard Strauss, Wagner, and others were made available for this book. Other sources of information were suggested also, and when the requisite 1001 Natiivities were duly tabulated there remained a considerable quantity over. These were put aside to form the nucleus of a "Second Series" which, no doubt, will follow this in due course.

The Compiler, therefore, while expressing his hearty thanks to all those by whose assistance he has profited in preparing the present work, ventures to express the hope that Each Reader will become his coöperator to the extent of one or more horoscopes, and thus cause the Second Series to cover if possible an even wider field than the present.

* One or two mistakes discovered while the work was passing through the press will be found corrected by a note added to the usual entry after the name.

ON THE TABULATION OF HOROSCOPES.

A great deal of interest is added to the study of Astrology when some form of tabulation is adopted whereby the number of maps showing any particular feature—say Mars in Aries—can be known at a glance. The results to which such a system of tabulation lead are no less interesting than surprising. As an instance may be mentioned the fact that up to the present no single person with Aries on the Ascendant has joined the Astrological Society, though ascendants are fairly evenly distributed among the other eleven signs. An observation of this kind naturally prompts speculation as to the relationship of Aries to astrology; but it would never have been made had not some system of tabulation rendered the fact conspicuous.

What that particular system may be is not of any great moment. For each student will naturally adopt his own methods of codification, and no single plan could be suggested which would meet with unanimous approval. A few of the desiderata which any successful plan should satisfy, may however be enumerated. (i) It should enable both sign-positions and house-positions to be tabulated, and that in such a way that any given position—say Mars in Aries, or Mars in the first house—can be singled out at a glance. (ii) It should similarly show at a glance the sign (not necessarily the degree) on the Ascendant and Midheaven. (iii) It should likewise show in a separate column the sign-positions of the Ruler of Ascendant. (iv) It should show, with as much completeness as can be contrived, the various aspects of the planets to ☉, ☿, Asc., M.C., and also the mutual aspects. Opinions will vary as to how this may most satisfactorily be achieved, for tastes differ; but while the method of ruling columns in an exercise book has the merit of compactness and portability, the popular "Card Index" system possesses certain advantages which will recommend it to those who do not consider portability a sine quâ non.

One of the advantages offered by this method is that it permits of any selected cards being grouped in any manner or placed in any order. Thus, supposing for the sake of argument all the natiivities in this book to have been tabulated in some such manner as described above, each on its own appropriate card, duly numbered, and one wishes to study the effect of, say, Mars square Saturn. It would only be necessary to deal out the cards as in whist, keeping one's eye on that spot of the card where '♂ □ ♀' was entered up, and dropping all such cards in a heap by themselves.

It seems hardly necessary to enlarge on the convenience of such a system for tabulation of any kind, and its growing popularity in the commercial world attests its entire practicalness. The writer, however, having employed the system for some years feels that its merits are far more likely to be under than over estimated, and therefore ventures to press its claims upon those who contemplate anything in the nature of systematic tabulation, either of their own collection of horoscopes or of those in this book.

There can be no doubt that if students generally were to do more in the way of tabulation, so as to have the mass of facts at their disposal more immediately available for reference, an immense stride forward could be made, and the scientific side of Astrology placed upon an assured foundation. For example, some time ago the present editor of the Occult Review stated that in his experience Taurus persons were averse from taking cold baths; a small matter, perhaps, but interesting from a medical point of view, and he asked if other students could corroborate the statement. A few did so, haltingly, but how overwhelming might have been the support or denial of the assertion if only every student had been provided with some such tabulation system as has been suggested.

As to the practical application of the card system to the tabulation of horoscopes, it is quite easy. For a few shillings an electrotype block of any diagram can be procured, and a local printer will print 500 cards for a small sum: the writer has found "court size" correspondence or post-cards useful. To have the 'tabulation' on one side of the card and the ordinary 'map' on the other offers obvious advantages. Some of the unexpected results and interesting side lights thrown upon quite familiar horoscopes by this method of dissection, will be found in an article on "The Tabulation of Horoscopes" in MODERN ASTROLOGY for November, 1910.

NOTES TO THE SECOND EDITION.

AS REGARDS ACCURACY.

IN the five years which have gone by since this book was first issued, during which time it has achieved what appears likely to prove a permanent popularity, opportunity has been afforded for the detection of any mistakes or misprints, errors of calculation, etc.

So far, only four have been reported which can fairly be ascribed to oversight on the part of printer or compiler.

- (i) cusp of third house in No. 007 should be ♁6 not ♁6
- (ii) cusp of third house in No. 034 should be ♁12 not ♁21
- (iii) the Moon in No. 096 should be ♀8 instead of ♁8 as printed
- (iv) Neptune in 972 should be ♄28 instead of ♁28 as printed

Whether this result is to be interpreted as indicative of success attending the care given to compilation, details of printing, etc., on the part of the publisher; or inattention on the part of readers generally; must be left an open question. Only those who have had experience in supervising the compilation and printing of tabular matter are capable of realising the difficulty of excluding chance errors, and the Compiler does not care to cheat himself with the hope that the four errors above cited are necessarily the only ones.

There have been received, however, a number of emendations or "corrections" which fall into a different category. As an example of the kind of thing may be mentioned the alteration in No. 066, Franz Hartmann's horoscope: yet the one printed was correctly calculated from data written on his own visiting card by Dr. Hartmann himself! Of the same nature also are corrections to Nos. 867 and 869. They have all been published in "Modern Astrology" from time to time as received, and are gathered together here and printed below. Among them will be found a few observations which are rather of the nature of comments than authoritative "corrections," but are included because of their general interest, and because with the others they represent ALL that has been brought to the Compiler's notice regarding the nativities published in this book.

CONCERNING SOME RECOMMENDATIONS.

Various suggestions have been received from students anxious for the improvement of the book. They have all received attentive consideration, and it is no doubt due to the fact that the senders have had no experience in this kind of work, that their recommendations have been found impracticable. Other considerations beside the convenience of the student govern the production of a work of this kind, and one of these is expense, a fact which our kindly counsellors seem to forget! For example the following recommendations have been made more than once:—

- (i) Give House and Planetary positions correct to minutes for the sake of those who make experiments involving great mathematical accuracy.
- (ii) Give the data of birth as well as reference for the sake of those who want to make calculations along their own lines, without having to laboriously discover the data by working backwards.

Those who make these suggestions have evidently either not read, or not weighed, what is said on p. 104. relative to "economic considerations"; and certainly they can have no experience of the expense of printing tabular matter. The carrying out of these recommendations would double the size of the book, and hence its cost, and hence also its retail price. Would the average reader thank us for this? We think not, and the only alternative would be to reduce the number of horoscopes by one-half. The publisher is assured, from the general estimation in which the book is held, that the present arrangement is, ON THE WHOLE, the best which could be adopted.

The number of students who wish to examine any particular horoscope more minutely, in the manner suggested, is proportionately too small to justify what is proposed.

A third recommendation,

- (iii) Give name opposite the planetary data, so as to be able to refer from horoscope to facts, is quite feasible. Indeed some such arrangement was contemplated from the start, but, as purchasers of the First Edition may remember, unexpected delay in publication had given rise to an accumulation of advance orders, and the final printing and binding was hurried. This recommendation has therefore been carried out in the present issue, though not exactly in the form proposed; because the book having been reprinted from the original stereos it has not been possible to add to any page.

"WHOSE HOROSCOPE IS IT?"

A Special Table is therefore given overleaf by which the FIRST THREE LETTERS OF THE NAME under which any horoscope is indexed on pp. 1-49, may be instantly found when the NUMBER OF THE HOROSCOPE is known.

This Table has been so contrived that 500 'names' appear at a single opening, and the numerical arrangement is that rendered familiar by such tables as Chambers's. That is to say, the first two digits of the number appear in the extreme left-hand column and the third digit at the head of one or other of the remaining columns.

Suppose, for example, we want to find whose horoscope is No. 390. We glance down the left-hand column till we find the first two digits "39," and in the same line, in the column headed "o," we find "alu" which means that the first three letters of the name, or other description under which the horoscope is entered, are the letters a—l—u. And in fact on turning to page 1, we find that No. 390 is the horoscope of "A LUCKLESS YOUTH."

Again No. 000, "qua," is SIR RICHARD QUAIN (p. 37). No. 537, "med," is CATHERINE DE MEDICI (p. 29). No. 005, "pri," is the PRINCE IMPERIAL (p. 36); and so on.

In the Table the letters are printed in italic small letters, more, of which he wishes to ascertain the names, a good plan is to jot down their several numbers, and against each set the three-letter "word" taken from the Table, and then turn to the earlier pages, and look them up; rather than to keep turning the leaves backwards and forwards in the effort to look out each separately, which is apt to lead to mistakes.

If a name is not at first found exactly where looked for, a little further search may reveal it; for example, MATTI KURRIKA has inadvertently been indexed after Mallet instead of after Matthias, MARGARET of Austria and MARIE Antoinette after MARRIAGE. In the Table this difficulty has been met by lettering them respectively:—207 mal, 545 marr, 694 marr. No other 'slips' of this kind have been detected.

INDISTINCT NUMBERS.

In some copies of the First Edition certain numbers on pp. 1-49 were printed somewhat indistinctly; they are all included in the following list, in which the 'name' is printed first:—

CORRECTIONS, COMMENTS, ETC.

The following corrections, etc., as already stated on p. 117 (to which the reader is referred) are all that have been communicated to the Compiler since publication in 1911. They have been duly announced from time to time in the pages of "Modern Astrology."

It has not been considered necessary to have the stereo-type plates altered, as this, besides involving additional expense, introduces the risk of damage to remainder of plates. So that pp. 1-116 are in all respects identical with the same pages in the First Edition, except that in pp. 1-49 the first and last word of each page is indicated in special type at the head of the page.

The reader is therefore recommended to pencil against each number as it occurs in pp. 50-100 of the book, a mark referring forward to the page following where the correction is given. If this is done the risk of the correction—or comment—escaping notice will be avoided.

Remarks such as those attached to 018, 059, 103, 228, 386, etc., must be taken as the writer's opinions and accepted for what they are worth

018 H. P. BLAVATSKY: (p. 5). "I am as certain as I can be that Sepharial made a mistake in saying she was born between midnight 31st and sunrise of next day. He was writing from memory some years after and mistook one day for another by a slip. It is strange that this horoscope has never been published without some small error creeping into it. I calculated it once and a printer's error in latitude got in. I wrote to her private secretary in 1888 and have her reply still and it does not agree with Sepharial but I have not the letter with me here. Nearly all prominent occultists' horoscopes are uncertain. A. B., C. W. L., H. S. O., none of these are known to the minute. Two versions of A. B.'s are in print, and both are within the limits of possibility." [H. S. Green.]

034 ALAN LEO: (pp. 26, 51). The third house should be ≈ 12 instead of ≈ 21

040 MRS ANNIE BESANT. (pp. 4, 52, 53). See remarks above concerning 018. A rectified map of Mrs Besant has been published since the first edition of this book was issued in 1911, see Esoteric Astrology, p. 132. In this the ascendant is given as $\gamma 5.3$ and the M.C. as $\gamma 91.54$.

059 ANNA KINGSFORD: (pp. 24, 52, 53). 'DEAR SIR,—I am able to give the real explanation of the confusion that seems to exist with regard to Anna Kingsford's hour of birth. Having been acquainted with her, I was interested in having her horoscope cast. The astrologer gave such an accurate character delineation that, thinking it would interest Mr Maitland to see, I sent it to him through a mutual friend, little realising how very unfortunate the result would be. He, finding Libra was not the rising sign, conceived the idea that the family record of the hour of birth ought to be disregarded in favour of her own belief that she was Libra, and followed this remark in his letter by saying he had made up his mind to write to his publisher, Mr George Redway, to alter the hour from 5 p.m. to 5 a.m. in the event of the Life going through a second edition, as he felt 'her own deep conviction was more reliable than the family tradition' (his own exact words). Finding that nothing would deter him from carrying out this astonishing decision, I wrote to Mr Redway explaining the matter and how unfair it would be to A. K. and to astrology if a false hour were substituted, and how concerned I felt about it, because it had been through my showing the horoscope that this misfortune had come about. (So little did Mr Maitland understand of astrology that he seems to have taken it for granted Libra would be ascending at 5 a.m., and did not trouble himself to make sure.) Mr Redway replied that he quite understood the situation, but there was not the least probability that the Life would go through a second edition. I kept Mr Maitland's letter to my friend (she giving it to me) for a great many years, and only destroyed it when I thought the matter could never come to the fore any more. The letter was of value, as it constituted conclusive evidence that there was a family record for the hour of birth as 5 p.m. It is most probable that Mr Maitland did tell people of his acquaintance of his intention to alter the hour of birth to a.m., and those who had no understanding of astrology would not comprehend that it was quite unwarrantable to substitute fancies for facts. He had no intention to make Virgo rising, and most certainly had A. K. seen a horoscope made out for Libra rising and had the reading of it been explained to her, she would not have persisted in her fantastical belief, which is all the Libra idea was.

"Another mistake which was responsible for several false horoscopes with Virgo rising was a notice of the Life in Borderland, giving the hour of birth as 5 a.m. I wrote to the Editor, pointing out the error and that the horoscope given for A. K. was for the wrong hour, which brought an apology from Mr Stead to the readers of Borderland for his 'unfortunate blunder.' Mrs Kingsford has, I believe, never had her horoscope published for the correct hour till now in the Occult Review, and all persons interested in astrology will feel grateful to you for doing her this tardy justice. Yours faithfully, E. FOUNTAINE." [Occult Review, Sept. 1914, p. 173.]

066 DR. FRANZ HARTMANN: (pp. 20, 52, 53). In the information originally supplied a.m. was given for p.m. by Dr. Hartmann: see p. 117 above, and also MA IX 440. The following should be substituted for the map given: x ♄ 8, xi ♄ 28, xii ♄ 26, i ♀ 18½, ii ♄ 27, iii ♀ 19; ☉ ♄ 29½, ☽ ♄ 2, ♄ ♄ 10, ♀ ♄ 23½, ♄ ♄ 9, 24 ♄ 11½, ♄ ♄ 1, ♄ ♄ 8½sd, ♄ ♄ 7½.

096 VISCOUNT HINTON: (pp. 21, 55). The ☽ should be ♄ 8, not ☿ 8.

103 THOMAS HARDY: (pp. 20, 54, 55). "Thomas Hardy was born 8.0 a.m. 2nd June 1840 at Dorchester. This data was supplied by the native himself—through the medium of an editor friend of mine, for test purposes. This places ♄ on the ascendant of the author of 'Tess' and not ♄ as you have it." [Harold Wych.] This statement was forwarded to the writer of the original article from which the map was taken, but no reply having been received we recommended our correspondent to write direct, we have not heard with what result.

153 THE LATE MIKADO: (p. 30). E. W. writes: "Replying to your request for information as to birth-time of late Mikado of Japan I copy the following notes, which I received from a Japanese friend in Seoul, Korea, who obtained it direct from the Librarian of H.I.M. household whose duties are, among others, the keeping of the genealogical records: 'The Emperor of Japan, born November 3rd, 1852, half past the hour of the "Horse," Kyoto local time, 35°1' N, 135°46' E.' 'Note: "half past the hour of the horse" corresponds to about 1 p.m. of the present system of time.' The gentleman who gave the above is a professional man and an amateur astrologer." [The speculative map No. 153, which is cast for 5.46 a.m., should be altered accordingly.]

159 DUKE OF NORFOLK'S SON: the 160 on p. 14 should be 159; see Arundel and Surrey. Earl of.

228 MR B. G. TILAK, author of The Orion, Our Arctic Home in the Vedas, and other works: (pp. 45, 60, 61). "Mr Tilak has in these parts been a person adored by some and more disliked by others. Unfortunately two astrologers have not been able to keep to the reported and authentic time—one at least from motives of party feeling. Mr Tilak's correct birthtime is 50 minutes after sunrise giving about 12° or 13° of ♄ rising. I have ascertained this time from his paper, and at my instance he has published it in his paper. His father was an educated man and something of an astrologer; and Mr Tilak says very particular care was taken to get the correct time of birth. So here your readers can have an opportunity of ascertaining the effect even of the degree rising—13th Leo" [G. H. Keskar.]

- 258 BULWER LYTTON : (pp. 26, 62, 63). Correct year of birth 1803, ascertained by reference to register in Parish Church of St. Mary-le-bone, through kindness of his granddaughter, Lady Emily Lutyens. The map on pp. 62, 63, is therefore correct.
- 310 REV. W. MEREDITH MORRIS : (p. 30). Maesteg not Maestæg; maesteg = the fair or lovely meadow. [A. Mee.]
- 386 AUROBINDO GHOSE : (pp. 19, 68, 69). "I got his birth-time and his autograph from Mr Ghose himself at Bombay early in 1908. My information thus obtained gives \odot rising. I should say however that the time I saw Mr Ghose he was in a hurry and gave this information from memory." [G. H. Keskar.]
- 387 TOM MANN : (pp. 27, 68, 69). D should be Q $29\frac{1}{2}$ instead of M 3. Time is now stated to be doubtful, and the horoscope had better therefore be regarded as a 'speculative' one. The date is correct.
- 429 BHAGAVAN DAS : (pp. 4, 70, 71). The year 1879 given in MA VII 396 from which this map is taken, is incorrect, it should be 1869, and the horoscope will therefore stand as follows:— x M 8, xi f 4, xii f 28, i V 23, ii X 0, iii V 7; \odot V 22, D V 14, f V 27 $\frac{1}{2}$, f f 23, f M 4 $\frac{1}{2}$, f V 7 $\frac{1}{2}$, f f 13, M V 15, M V 14 $\frac{1}{2}$.
- 663 GEORGE WICHELL : (p. 49). He was not astronomer Royal Sibly says so but it is wrong. [A. Mee.]
- 730 KING GEORGE III : (p. 19). It is to be observed that 24.5.1738 is evidently O.S. which would be equivalent to 4.6.1738: 24+11=35, and 35-31=4; see page 110. The map given can therefore be relied upon.
- 856 "ASTROLOGY AS IT IS, NOT AS IT HAS BEEN REPRESENTED."—Regarding the author of this book, 'A Cavalry Officer,' No. 856 on p. 2, W. A. B.-C. writes: "The author was well known to me, in fact he converted me to Astrology, and gave me his book in 1867 when I was in Barbados, West Indies. He was Colonel Clements, and in 1867 was chief of Police in Barbados. He was a very able man, and a good fellow."
- 67 LADY EMILY LUTYENS : (pp. 26, 92, 93). The nativity

- of Lady Emily Lutyens, the National Representative of the "Order of the Star in the East," published in MA VIII 268, was calculated from an approximate time supplied by the native herself, who has since been enabled to ascertain the exact time, and the following should therefore be substituted for the house and lunar positions given in No. 867:— x A 8, xi M 4, xii M 24, i f 11, ii V 17, iii X 0, D Q 14, the other positions remaining as before. See MA X 323.
- 869 REV. C. W. SCOTT-MONCRIEFF : (pp. 40, 92, 93). "When we met at Adyar I gave you my birthtime incorrectly as 2 a.m., but when I got home to England I found that it was 9.30 p.m. The date I gave correctly, of course, 14/3/79, and the place Edinburgh." Readers will therefore kindly substitute the following for No. 869:— x Q 8, xi M 13, iii A 8, i A 27, ii M 23, iii f 27; \odot X 24, D f 21, f V 4, f V 17 $\frac{1}{2}$, f V 27, f A 27 $\frac{1}{2}$, f V 4, M V 1, M V 8.
- 972 EMANUEL KANT : (pp. 24, 98, 99); M M 28 should be M V 8. Should be 22/4/1724 3 a.m. instead of 5 a.m. and N.S. instead of O.S. according to "Fragments of Kant's Life," which gives:— x f 17, xi V 3, xii V 21, i A 23, ii V 27, iii X 28; \odot X 2, D V 13 $\frac{1}{2}$, f V 21, f P 11, f A 19, f A 10, f V 11, M V 2, M V 8: see MA IX 183.
- 999 GEORGE BERNARD SHAW : (pp. 40, 98, 99). This horoscope of Mr Shaw was founded on a statement made by Miss I. M. Pagan in the course of a chance conversation in which she mentioned him as born under Gemini. In reply to a letter asking if she could give more definite information she kindly replies as follows (24/1/14):—"I had the information about Mr Shaw's birth from his older sister who declared she remembered most distinctly being told the hour, when the arrival of a baby brother was told to her on awaking in the morning. Her mother corroborated; but was less absolutely certain. It was thereabouts, i.e., 'about 0.40 a.m., 26th July, 1856, Dublin.' Miss Shaw was very young at the time." A horoscope calculated for this time shows the following positions, which should therefore be substituted for those given in the map referred to:—x \approx 11 $\frac{1}{4}$, xi \times 8, xii ∇ 25, i Π 20, ii \ominus 7, iii \ominus 23; \odot Ω 3, \textcircled{D} γ 21 $\frac{1}{2}$, δ \ominus 18, Σ Ω 4 $\frac{1}{2}$, δ \approx 27, M ∇ 9 sr, η \ominus 8, M γ 24 $\frac{1}{2}$, Ψ \times 20r

MA XI 137.

COÖPERATION INVITED.

The Compiler invites attention to the appeal on p. 114, which has not met with the response which he ventures to think he had a right to expect. Will each student who is not displeased with the book make a point of sending one Notable Nativity from his own collection? If this is done, the issue of the hoped-for "Second Series" need not be very long delayed.

STATISTICAL ASTROLOGY.

The work of classifying the nativities in this book has now been taken up by a group of students and their results will, it is hoped, ere long be available for general use, thus marking the First Step in the direction of Statistical Astrology, the need for which has been emphasised by critical writers more than once. Solitary students who have little opportunity of exchanging views with fellow-students, and who are therefore apt to feel themselves somewhat "out of the running" as regards astrological thought, have here an opportunity of doing work that will benefit themselves and others. It is a simple matter to go through the list of names and collect together those that have any characteristic in common—e.g. royalty, artistic genius, administrative ability, self-improvement as regards social position, unhappy married life, etc., etc.
